PIONEER WASHER.
E. G. BOLTER,
AGENT FOR OREGON AND WASHINGTON TERRITORY.
THIS CELEBRATED WASHING MACHINE IS now for the first time introduced to the Oregon public. It is unrivalled for its simplicity, durability and the rapidity and ease of its action. Washing the filthiest clothes perfectly clean in from five to ten minutes, with but slight labor, and lasting, with proper care, for ten years. The wear and tear of clothing in washing by this machine is vastly less than by any other known process of washing. It does its work by a reverse motion in forcing the water through the clothes.
It having a tight cover, the steam thus assists materially in cleansing the clothes, and also avoids the inhaling of steam from hot suds.
This Machine captured the Special Premium at the California State Fair, and all that have used it pronounce it an invaluable adjunct to old housekeepers and families and washing men and washing women.
It has been extensively introduced throughout the State of California, and receives the universal commendation of all who have used it.
THE COUNTY RIGHTS, now unsold, will be sold at a bargain if applied for soon.

No Law Against Gambling.

[From the Oregon City Enterprise.]

By a late decision of our Supreme Court, it is ascertained that we have no law against gambling in this State. That the statutes of Oregon on the crime of gambling are so vague and uncertain that they are void. The statute which called forth this decision, begins at section 666, on page 568, of the general laws of Oregon and that section reads as follows, viz:

"All gambling devices of whatever name or nature, adopted, devised, or designated for the purpose of playing any game of chance for money, property or other valuable thing, or any representative thereof, are prohibited from being set up, kept, used, exhibited, opened, dealt, played, or practiced in this State."

Again, section 669 on the same page, reads:

"If any person shall bet any money, property, or other valuable thing, or any representative thereof, at, or on, any gambling device prohibited by section 666, such person, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by fine, not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars."

We do not propose reversing the decision of the learned Court, nor to say anything disrespectful of its action in regard to this law. But we claim the right, common to all American citizens, to examine the reasons assigned for such a conclusion. It is true, these reasons and the decision have not been written out and published as authority, and they may not for years to come. We only take those assigned at the time the decision was orally announced by the Court. We understand that the principal objection urged against the law, is, that there is no common law definition of a gambling device, or what a game of chance is, and the statute itself does not furnish any. This may be so, and yet not be a good legal ground for rejecting the common sense meaning of words. For section 730, on page 575 of the code, reads thus—

"The rule of the common law that penal statutes are to be strictly construed, has no application to this code, but all its provisions are to be construed according to the fair import of their terms, with a view to effect its objects, and to promote justice."

Webster's definition of the word device is—"a trick; a contrivance; a scheme." The dropping from the statute the word device, and substituting in place thereof its definitions, and the statute would then read thus: "All gambling tricks, contrivances, and schemes of whatever name or nature, adapted, devised or designed for the purpose of playing any game of chance for money," &c. And it would be a violent presumption to presume that the judges of courts do not understand the meaning of the term gambling or know what a game of chance is. This statute, thus, is sufficiently explicit and comprehensive to designate and include all games of chance, and prohibit all betting; and such, no doubt, is the intention and meaning of the law. But, if we understand aright, the court appeared to think that the Legislature ought to have specified what the games of chance are; such for instance as faro, monte, poker, seven-up, euchre, and so on ad infinitum. This would look very clear and nice, but instead of making the law plainer and better, it would only make it easier to evade. Lawyers tell us that in order to convict, it is necessary to prove the crime as alleged in the indictment. Take, then, the game of poker, a game usually played with five cards to the hand. Let a person be indicted for playing this game for money, and proceed to trial on this indictment. But when it came to the proof, the evidence showed that the game was played just like poker, with the exception that it was played with four or seven cards instead of five, and was not called poker, but the game of pairs and triplets. Then it was poker in its modus operandi, and in all its effects, but it had a slight change in the manner of playing it, and was called by another name, therefore it was not poker, and no conviction could be had. The same may be said of all the other games of chance. We are not addicted to the vice of gambling, and never have been, but have seen it practiced. And who that has lived on this coast for any considerable time, has not seen gambling. And any person who has ever seen gambling knows how full of tricks and expedients gamblers are, and can readily see how easy it would be for them to make the necessary change in the game, or name of it, to enable them to gamble with perfect impunity, if the law was as specific in its definitions as desired by the court. The statute, as it is, cuts off all chance for such dodging, and, if enforced, would entirely eradicate the evil.

In short, taking a common sense view of the subject, we are unable to perceive or appreciate the fine line of metaphysical reasoning by which the Court arrived at the conclusion that the statutes of Oregon on gambling "are so vague and uncertain that they are void. But it requires no legal learning, nor any great exertion of mind to understand what effect this decision will have on the public morals. There can be no statute enacted against gambling again until the meeting of the Legislature next year. Until that time, gambling in all its forms is licensed in this State, and can be carried on with impunity. And although we have no sympathy for the adept of ordinary sense who will sit down and permit the professional gambler to take all he has, yet, there is another consideration to be taken into the account: Boys and young men are inadvertantly drawn to places where there is gambling, and as inadvertantly "taken in." And we do feel a sympathy for the youth of our country, who, lured by the success of the professionals, are drawn into this vortex of ruin. But can the Legislature remedy this? We bow in submission, and wait in hope.

TWO MEN EATEN BY SHARKS.—The Liverpool Post of September 1st says:

On Monday night the American ship Josephine, Captain Mitchell, arrived at Cork harbor from Remedios, Cuba, for orders. The captain reports the fearful death of two of his crew, by being devoured by sharks while the vessel was lying at Remedios. It appears Captain Mitchell had been on shore, on the 20th of June, with two of his crew, purchasing some stores. Having transacted his business, Captain Mitchell took his boat, and a fair wind blowing, he rigged sail. Having accomplished half the journey, accompanied by the two seamen, a squall struck the boat, and it was so severe that it was completely turned over. The captain and the men were precipitated into the water, the boat sinking under them in about two fathoms of water. Two barrels which had been in the boat were floating about, and Captain Mitchell directed his men to hold on to them till assistance came, while he himself seized the mast, about a foot of which projected over the water. The captain believes the men did as he told them, but in a few minutes after he heard their cries. On looking around he found the two men had disappeared from the surface of the water, and in a minute he saw the water about where the men were became red, which left no doubt in his mind that the unfortunate men had been taken by sharks. The Captain then prepared for the worst, and at the time he gave up all chance of escape, as the water in the place is actually infested with sharks. He lashed himself to the mast of the boat, and for thirteen hours he remained in a state of fearful suspense. The accident to the boat occurred at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and about 2 o'clock on the morning of the 27th he found that his fears during the preceding ten hours were well grounded, for when the day began to dawn Captain Mitchell's alarm may be imagined, when he saw two immense sharks swimming about him, at an oar's length, evidently watching an opportunity to plunge at him. With these two monsters Captain Mitchell remained in this very perilous condition for three hours longer. The Captain, from mingled fear and exhaustion, was getting insensible, when fortunately, about 5 o'clock, a lighter which was passing came to his assistance. The approach of the lighter frightened off the sharks, and Captain Mitchell was

Why It Was Done

Union men will not forget that the terms and conditions of restoration which were first offered to the rebel States by Congress were scornfully and defiantly rejected They will not forget that an effort was made by Congress to induce the ex States to re-organize on the basis of the Constitutional amendment offered last year, and that the effort was frustrated by those who, as General Grant says, "did all in their power to break up this Government by arms and now wish to be the only element consulted as to the method of restoring order." Johnson had stepped so far aside from his own duties as to counsel the rejection of the requirements of Congress, and influenced by his pernicious advice and led astray by their own blindness, this "element" had defeated the restoration aimed at by Congress, and something else had to be done It became necessary to use other methods to secure the desired result All our readers remember the propositions embodied in the Constitutional Amendment which was submitted to the people of the loyal States last year, and which were received by them with such astonishing favor. But the rebel states spurned these propositions It was necessary to obtain their assent to them, not that it was deemed strictly requisite to their validity that they should be accepted by the ex States, but because it was indispensable that some assurance should be given by the late rebels of their submission to the results of Congress, and their acquiescence in the demands of the loyal North When the efforts to secure the acceptance by the South the propositions so earnestly demanded by the North, failed, then came the military bill and the plan of reconstruction which is now being carried

One of the features of this plan is universal suffrage in the rebel States. There was no remaining alternative whereby the result aimed at could be attained, for unless this new element were brought in, the rebels would continually defeat the reconstruction measures demanded by the Northern people Negro suffrage thus become imperatively necessary in the rebel states, and under the force of these circumstances Congress enacted it. It was regarded as a means to secure the restoration of the Union on the basis of the constitutional amendment which the loyal people of the country ratified last year On this ground the action of Congress is defensible, and on this ground we believe it fully justified by all who supported the measure through the great struggle It was a question whether those who had done all in their power to break up the Government by force of arms should be permitted to have their own way in the settlement of these questions, or whether those who by preserving the Government had established their right to control it, should dictate the terms on which the settlement was to be made Without negro suffrage in the South to counterwork the rebel element, the loyal States could not have obtained the results they wanted but with universal suffrage the rebel States will be reorganize, and the propositions embodied in the constitutional amendments will be accepted, and reconstruction will be completed on the basis of it by the loyal States. We shall thus secure what otherwise would have been inevitably lost Within one year the rebel States will be restored to their old relations with the Government of the Union on the terms proposed by Congress last year and received with such favor by the loyal ones Congress will convene next month and before its next adjournment the whole work will be finished The ex States are now calling conventions to adopt Constitutions, which they will present to Congress at once. These Constitutions will be accepted, and the Union will be restored on the basis insisted upon by the loyal people of the country, in lieu of that demanded by them as a step in rebellion. Universal suffrage is the North's sine qua non by which this is being accomplished When it was found that the rebel element could be subdued by the means which the Government first employed for that purpose, the blacks were organized and armed against their rebellious masters and the help they afforded contributed materially to the nation's success So when it was found that reconstruction could not be accomplished by the methods first tried, the blacks were armed with the ballot as they had formerly been with the musket, as auxiliaries to secure a triumph over those who were determined to defeat reconstruction on any other plan than that of their own choosing. The result will fully justify the action of Congress In a few months we shall have a restored Union

Side Issues.

In the above there were issues apart from National politics created greatly to the disadvantage of the Republicans In California the German populist element united unitedly with the Democrats the latter hoping to kill the Sunday law This the German papers stated after the election In Maine, the Republicans lost heavily because of the ridiculous "Sale and order law which was enacted in that State last year The issue in Iowa was mainly on the liquor question In many of the counties anti prohibition candidates were run for the Legislature and throughout the State generally the Democrats took advantage of the sentiment against prohibitory legislation to make capital against the Republicans This liquor question has entered largely into recent political contests, and the apparent gains made by the Democrats are in part ascribable to this agitation In Ohio and Pennsylvania the same agencies were at work as in Iowa and Maine, though perhaps with less intensity than in the latter State. Nor is this all The agitation of the labor question by foolish "reformers" has accrued to the advantage of the Democratic party It was one of the causes which distracted the Republicans in San Francisco, and in Cincinnati it brought about the election of a Democratic Congressman. Again, the Republicans have been worsted by contests within the party for the nomination for the Presidency For example, in the Ohio State Convention, there was a contest between the Chase men and the Hayes men for the advantage, and the latter of such rivalries always weaken the dominant party On the eve of a Presidential election the politicians are always engaged in Presidential work and the party which has the ascendency suffers temporary losses by these maneuvers. Furthermore, the Democrats have undoubtedly gained something by their adroit appeals to the people on the subject of taxing United States bonds This shallow demagogery can secure no permanent result, as the people only need to be enlightened on the subject in order to discover its absurdity. When the time for the Presidential and Congressional elections arrives, the Republicans will go into the contest without the load of unpopular candidates, Maine liquor laws and foolish local legislation of various kinds like that which has been detrimental to the party in the elections of this year, and it will gain a splendid victory as it always does when it confines itself strictly to national issues and measures

CANADA.—The Philadelphia North American is in favor of renewing the reciprocity treaty with Canada on some satisfactory basis. It says

Now that the northern territory is to some extent nationalized and naturally solicitous for doing more than it has done, there seems to be a favorable opportunity for renewing our amicable relations. There will be time enough to discuss what the nature of our relations should be when we have approached the subject a little nearer. It is enough now to intimate that the business of the country, and its finances as well, will be greatly improved by restoring some such intercourse as we originally had with the Northern Provinces

PARIS, Oct 10.—The Press says the Pope is confident of his ability successfully to resist the struggling forces of the invaders, but he fears the Italian Government will yield to the popular outcry and order the troops now concentrating on the frontier to march on Rome The insurgents are concentrated at Frascati, where they have thrown up intrenchments Many other points in the Roman territory have been occupied by the Garibaldians. A strong force left Rome to prevent the junction of Menotti, Garibaldi's son, and party, with other insurgents. The garrison of Rome is now very small. The plan of the Garibaldians appears to be to draw the troops away from Rome; and thus give their partisans in that city an opportunity to rise

Arrangements are complete for a meeting of Napoleon and the King of Prussia, in Baden, at an early day The Moniteur publishes a letter which it declares to be genuine purporting to be written by the Emperor to Marquess Lavalette, Minister of the Interior, written Aug 0, 1867, The Emperor explicitly denies that he has any desire to interfere with or profit by the reconstruction of Germany

LONG DRESSES.—Oliver Wendell Holmes touches off the habit of wearing long dresses, which, we are glad to observe, are now discarded by our ladies

Why, there is not a beast or a bird that would drag its tail through the dirt in the way these creatures do their dresses. Because a queen or duchess wears long robes on great occasions, a maid of all work or a factory girl thinks she must make herself a nuisance by trailing through the streets, picking up and carrying with her—bah! that's what I call getting vulgarity into your bones and marrow Show over dirt is the attribute of vulgar people. If any man can walk behind one of these women, and see what she rakes up as she goes, and not feel squeamish, he has got a tough stomach I would not let one of them into my room without serving them as David did Saul at the cave in the wilderness—cut off his skirts! Don't tell me that a true lady ever sacrifices the duty of keeping all about her sweet and clean, to the wish of making a vulgar show I don't believe it of a lady There are some things that no fashion has any right to touch, and cleanliness is one of them"

The Elections.

The result of the elections is a good deal better for the Republicans than was first reported The Democratic majority in Pennsylvania is extremely small, and as a Judge of the Supreme Court was the only officer chosen, the election has little political significance Iowa is thoroughly Republican The only comfort the Democrats can derive from the result in that State is the fact that they have gained a few members of the Legislature In Ohio, though we have lost a United States Senator, we have saved the Governor, a far more important result The Republicans are already strong in the United States Senate and can better spare one of their members from that body than they could spare the Governor of a great State like Ohio In case of any difficulty with Johnson, or any more civil troubles in the country, there would be immense advantage in having reliable men at the head of the governments of the great States The Governors of the principal States are all men of this class, and if Johnson attempts to carry out his revolutionary threats, the advantage of having elected General Hayes Governor of Ohio may prove to be beyond all present calculation There were many local and minor issues involved in the late elections which divided and greatly weakened the Republicans, but with their forces united, as they will be in the Presidential election next year, there can be no doubt of their triumph

The Herald tries to be very severe against General Grant It verily believes that Grant, if nominated, "would be worse beaten than Gen Scott was in 1852 "Then of course the Herald hopes that Grant will be the Republican candidate But the truth is it is quaking and quaking through fear that he will be nominated It says that the time for military men in civil office is past. This sounds sweetly, coming as it does from an organ of the party whose last candidate was that military popinjay, Gen Boss McClellan But the Herald may escape by protesting that McClellan was not a "military man" We don't wonder at its saying that its party has had about enough of such military heroes as Grant, Sherman and Sheridan The Southern Democracy have had quite enough of them too

Some errors occur in newspapers that are funny and at the same time provoking In the telegraphic report of Senator Wade's late speech at this place, published in the Cincinnati Commercial, Mr Wade is made to say of Hon Thos Ewing, "Poor old clown!" What he did say was, "Poor old Tom" In republishing the speech we made the proper correction Again, the Commercial had it, "Jeremiah, in his most hypocritical mood" We overlooked this and printed it the same in the Register Mr. Wade actually used the word hypochondriacal, and hypocritical.—Marietta Regis ar

General Sheridan is the youngest man ever prominently mentioned for the Presidency. He is only a year older than the constitutional requirement

SENSIBLE TALK.—The Vancouver Register makes the following sensible remarks in an article designed to show that this country can never expect a permanent market until the productions of the country are sufficiently increased to always supply the demands of such market, and the necessity of advertising such productions as we have

"To receive support from foreign trade, it must be advertised to the world that we have certain articles to dispose of. Suppose an Oregon paper mill to have supplied Washington Territory and Oregon with paper and yet have on hand a heavy stock. It would seldom find out on the owners hands if California, Mexico, Chili Australia and the Sandwich Islands be not advised of the fact of the branch of industry there. So of dried fruit, or any production, it must be known that a certain amount of an article surely can be obtained in a country, then in the trade to that country, orders will be sent. And in establishing any manufactory, time enough must be given it to advertise its articles to the world, before it is declared "it won't pay." An intelligent commission merchant in San Francisco recently made the ridiculous inquiry 'whether the State of Oregon could furnish most enough to supply his trade.' And an ex-Governor of California chating with an Oregonian on oysters, remarked that he believed oysters were not obtained north of California" when the fact is the State of California obtains her supply from Oregon and Washington Territory, and those it at he was eating were from the North Pacific coast. These instances show how little advertised we are to sustain a trade, but though we were in one of our chief staples—lumber—a vessel load could not be immediately obtained on the Columbia river Showing that even in the manufacture of lumber we are inadequate to the demand. The OREGONIAN says, "that building in Portland is delayed for want of lumber, and that the city mills were more than three weeks behind with orders." The St Helens mill is running day and night unable to keep up with its orders. And in Vancouver, no lumber yard could furnish a large bill though surrounded by mills running to full capacity. While this indicates a heavy lumber trade and rapid growth of our town, it shows how inadequate is the manufacture to the demand. To create a trade, we must enlarge our means of production. The owner of a small mill near the Columbia is thought a large mill like the St Helens saw mill would overstock the market by turning out 25,000 feet of lumber per day, but what is the result? Ship owners are found that they could load a vessel there with lumber, and went there—went where load or vess to be had and the result is we to find mill is behind with its orders, and there is a brisk demand for the lumber of the smaller mills."

Oregonians have always complained of the want of a market. The fault has been mostly with themselves They never had enough of anything to attract a steady trade. Buyers of any particular product will never come regularly here to purchase till they can depend on getting more than a cart load, and at reasonable prices. If Oregon would grow a million bushels surplus wheat every year, every pound of it would be bought every year. So of any other product. Grow them, or make them, let the world know you have got them, and there will be no trouble about a permanent market.

RISING.—The last number but one of the Albany Journal had the following item: "Col. James H. Noyce, formerly of the Dalles, arrived in Albany last week to attend the fair; he was last seen at the fair grounds on Friday evening last. On Saturday a pair of saddle-bags, containing a lot of medicines and a fine veil worn, frock-coat, were found in the bushes south of the pavilion and identified as belonging to him. There is anxiety as to whether any untoward matter has befallen him." The friends of Col. Noyce here were not at first seriously alarmed about this matter; but as time wore on and nothing was heard from him, and as he failed either to return here or to communicate with a house through which he had ordered goods for the State fair, or to be himself at the State fair, where it was well known he intended to be, they began some days ago to feel much alarm. The Albany News week before last received from the husband of his wife who is in this city, until a telegram of inquiry had been sent to Albany, and an answer received stating that nothing more had been learned of him. It was then thought best to inform her, and, of course she is in great distress at his mysterious absence and silence. Just before the time when he was last seen, he transmitted money to this city for goods which he desired to dispose of at the State fair, and he was expected to either come here for them, or send directions as to forwarding. The fate has heard nothing from him. Grave fears are entertained that he has been foully dealt with. His friends here will be under great obligations to any one who will communicate any knowledge he may have concerning him.

WHEAT AND FLOUR.—There was rather brisk competition among buyers of wheat yesterday in this city. We understand that the price was firm all day at $1 10 and that several lots were disposed of at figures above that; one lot, at $1 17½. The telegraphic dispatches of last evening, from San Francisco, reported extra flour in quarter sacks at $7 75@8 00, and wheat, choice milling, at $2 40@2 25 ₩ 100 pounds. The material rise in wheat since last week, is a little unexpected. The commercial reports from all sources, contain predictions that fair prices will rule throughout the year; but none we have seen speak of anticipating a large price. It is not probable that the present activity with upward tendencies, will be of long continuance. What will curtail go below $1 00 again soon; but on the other hand, it is not likely to continue long at a much greater figure. We suggest to farmers that now is a pretty good time to sell.

SHE SEAMS NAW.—In the harness and saddlery establishment of Messrs Sherlock & Co., we saw yesterday a solid looking case of saddlery goods, marked to the address, "F. Reenge, Yreka, Cal." Upon inquiry Mr. Sherlock informed us that the case had a saddle and complete accoutrements and a considerable variety of staple goods, to the order of Mr Reenge, a dealer of Yreka. A gentleman who had dealt for two or three years with Sherlock & Co., had advised the Yreka dealer that he could buy cheaper and better goods here than at San Francisco, and the order was the result of that advice. The goods are sent as samples. It is something new for our people to supply Northern California with such manufactures; but it need surprise no one, if our trade in harness and saddlery with Southern Oregon and Northern California should come to be very considerable in a few years.

PRODUCE ARRIVALS BY TEAMS.—Notwithstanding the unfavorable aspect of the weather yesterday morning, our streets, in the neighborhood of the mills and warehouses of produce dealers, were thronged throughout the day with teams loaded with produce. At one time in the afternoon we counted in front of one block thirteen two and four horse teams, standing and awaiting their turns to unload, while in sight, up and down the street, there were as many more, besides a train of seven wagons at Vaughn's mill, near by. At the same time there were many similar teams on First and other streets. The lively aspect of affairs lasted from early forenoon to late afternoon. It is safe to say that not less than one hundred and twenty-five wagon loads of produce were offered in this city, yesterday.

MILITARY ORDER.—The following is a copy of General Order No. 20, issued from the Head Quarters of the Department of the Columbia, October 14th:

I.—Brevet Colonel A. R. Eddy, Major and Q. M., having reported for duty in obedience to Special Orders No. 121, Head Quarters Military Division of the Pacific, is assigned to duty as Chief Quartermaster of this Department.

II.—Brevet Brig. Gen. R. B. Babbitt, Asst. Q. M. Gen., will turn over to Col. Eddy all the funds and property pertaining to the Quartermaster's Department in his possession. By order of

BVT. MAJ GEN. F STEELE

INDIAN OUTRAGE AT EAGLE CREEK.—The following information from Mr. W. W. Ross, is from a letter dated Eagle Creek, Union county, Sept. 20th. "On the 16th inst a party of Nez Perces Indians, seven in numbers, broke into and robbed of its contents, a miner's cabin on main Eagle Creek, owned by A. Johnston, G Curtis, and R. Goodson. They also carried away and destroyed, all the mining tools and about seventy feet of an eight-inch hydraulic hose and pipe. The leader of the band had a pass stating that he was a good and peaceable Indian, and requesting all persons having dealings with him to treat him justly and kindly,' and signed by 'Affley, General Agent.'"

CANNED SALMON.—Mr. R. E Chatfield, yesterday, received a couple of cans of Columbia river Salmon, put up by Hapgood, Hume & Co., at Oak Point, W T. The cans are about the usual size of an oyster or fruit can, and the Salmon were of last Spring's run. The fish, upon trial, are found as good and fresh as when first taken. This manner of preserving them will no doubt, be found profitable to the enterprising fishermen and very convenient to the lovers of Salmon, as they may be obtained fresh at all seasons of the year.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT—DEADY, JUSTICE.—Proceedings of Monday, Oct. 14th:

United States vs. H. W Davis, Robert Portland and James B. Stephens, sureties, motion for leave to defendant Portland, to come in and file separate answer, upon his affidavit, filed, argued and submitted. Same pro. Reply as to defendant Stephens

James Field vs Ida Squires continued by stipulation of the parties till Monday, the 21st

RECORDER'S COURT.—In the Recorder's court yesterday, the following proceedings were had

State of Oregon vs Wm Williams, assault and battery, continued till this morning

City vs Mrs E. M Bath; charge employing waiter girls in a saloon without a license therefor; acquitted.

State vs Thos Connolly; charge an assault with a dangerous weapon; defendant held to answer and bond fixed at $100.

IN THE LINE OF PROMOTION.—We have just heard the story of an old Democrat of Cowlitz county, W T who was at Olympia last winter, button holing the members of the Legislature for an office. There was a Librarian to elect. He would first take one then another member to one side and say "See here now, you could do me a good turn, I want you to make me Librarian." He was in the line of promotion—he wanted to be promoted from a Lieutenant to a nigger.

GRAND LECTURER APPOINTED.—Mr O Beal, W G C T. of the Order of Good Templars, yesterday reappointed Col. A. E. G Adams, the Grand Lecturer for the Order in Oregon, Washington Territory, Idaho Territory and British Columbia. The captain has a somewhat wide field of labor for the coming year. He will have to spread himself.

PRESENTATION.—On Saturday, Rev Dr Schwab was made the recipient of an elegant gold watch and chain, presented by several of his personal friends as a substantial manifestation of their friendship and esteem. It bears the inscription "A token of esteem to Dr I Schwab, Portland, 1867." It is a handsome gift and worthily bestowed.

JUSTICE'S COURT—GRADIN, JUSTICE.—The case of the State vs. A Hamilton, before Justice Gradin, was yesterday dismissed on motion of the Prosecuting Attorney, there being no testimony to sustain the charge.

PORTLAND BRANCH RAILROAD.—A gentleman from Hillsboro says the Tualatin Plains, with Lamhill, Polk and Benton counties, will subscribe $300 000 for Gaston a certain railroad; that, that amount will build the first section of twenty miles; that they are going to make the northern terminus at the foot of the Willamette falls and leave Portland "out in the cold" and if Portland wants any interest in the road it must build a branch. We call that pretty good. Wake up, Sammy.

LEE & RYLAND'S CIRCUS.—The Salem Record of yesterday says: "A rather free fight occurred yesterday morning in connection with the Circus. Two of the employees wanted to add a female each to the traveling arrangements. Mr Ryland refused, and a row took place in which the aforesaid two men were worsted. It will probably make a difference in the construction of the company.

A RECENT PHENOMENA.—We hear a rumor that during the State Fair, a woman, the mother of four children, eloped with "another feller" than her husband leaving the latter to take charge of their mutual "responsibilities." We learned no names in connection with the affair.

A HIGH LOAD.—The Alert came down from Oregon City last night, after dark, and too late for us to procure a copy of her manifest. A passenger says she brought a huge load of freight from Oregon City and all along shore, and about one hundred passengers!

NEWSPAPER CHANGE.—The Capital Chronicle, of Salem, has undergone a change in proprietorship. Mr Upton has purchased Mr Koltner's interest in the paper, and will hereafter conduct it as proprietor and editor.

THE CAUSE.—It has been ascertained that the demonstration on Saturday night was not owing to the news of the Democratic victories, but to the fact that Harman Bros received on Saturday an immense stock of Clothing by the steamers, which they are selling at marvelously low prices.

A NEW LAMP AND A NOVEL ONE.—Mr H N H Brown, traveling agent for the San Francisco importers, placed on our table yesterday a small house, lamp which is a father novel thing. In outside appearance it is not on like an engineer's oil can with a handle on one side. The inside is divided into two compartments, one of which is stuffed with cotton. The burning fluid—"Luckie oil"—is poured in, the cotton takes up all it will hold and the remainder is then emptied out, so that the lamp can be carried in any position without spilling oil. The wick communicates with the cotton and absorbs the oil from it. A gill of oil will fill it, and, it is said, will supply the flame for ten or twelve hours. There is no possibility of explosion or other danger in its use. The fluid costs about 50 per gallon. It will thus be seen that the lamp is an economical one and it is certainly much more convenient than any other lamp, and more cleanly than a candle. Bunnell Bros. are agents for Portland and will receive a large stock soon.

EVENING SCHOOL.—St Joseph's Academy from and after this evening, will be opened every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening, for lessons. This is the only evening school of the kind in the city, the branches to be taught are such as will fit pupils for business, and the charges are reasonable. The school is located at the corner of Taylor and Oak streets.

AUCTION SALES.—Messrs. Falk & Kraemer, Auctioneers, on the corner of Front and Washington streets, received per steamer Sierra Nevada and California, a large variety of goods of every description, purchased at those large auctions sales recently held in San Francisco and which they are selling very cheap.

A PLEASANT PLACE.—Mr. S. Schwartz, opposite the New Columbian Hotel, advertises this morning, his extensive stock of new goods, per the last steamer. Our friends can certainly find all the new styles at Mr. Schwartz's store, and can buy them, too, at reduced rates.

BOOTS AND SHOES.—Messrs Kast & Cohalin who have been selling very cheap bargains in boots and shoes, for some time, are now opening 100 cases received by the steamer Sierra Nevada and will continue to sell as cheap as ever.

FOR ASTORIA.—The steamer Ranger, Capt Fisher, will make a trip to Astoria on Wednesday next and return on the day following. 2t

THE STATE FAIR

[FROM OUR OWN REPORTER]

SIXTH DAY.

SALEM, Oct. 12, 1867.

Salem was awake at an early hour by the clatter of vehicles, the shrill call of steam whistles and the general hurrah that comes with the breaking-up of an institution as large as the State Fair. The clerks have been employed all day in paying off the premiums, and everybody has been busy in packing up or selling their articles and making preparations to go home.

The races that came off this morning between the horses Portland and Richmond, 2 heat in 3, was won by Portland—time, 1 57½ and 1:57½. This race, like all the rest during the Fair, was but very little above ordinary scrub speed. And what if it was! What connection is there between an Agricultural Society and a horse race? The object and purpose of an Agricultural Society is and should be to aid, encourage and promote the best interests of all the agricultural pursuits—to ascertain what are the best and most profitable sorts of grains, grapes, esculents, vegetables, sheep, cattle, horses, swine, &c.—to learn the modus operandi of obtaining the largest yield from the ground at the smallest expense. An Agricultural Society should aim to give the greatest good to the greatest number. In looking over the premium list, I see that nearly all the valuable premiums are offered to trotting or, running horses. Why is this? Do a majority of the farmers and mechanics in the State, or even a respectable minority of them own, or are they in any way interested in fast horses? No; there are probably not more than ten or fifteen fast horses in the State, and it is much more than probable that the most of them are owned by horse jockeys. The Society offers a premium of $10 for the best acre of wheat or oats grown in the State; not enough to pay the expense of furnishing the necessary certificates and proofs to establish the fact that such a crop was grown. Yet the man that happens to have the fastest trotter gets $150! Now, there are thousands engaged in growing wheat, and everybody eats bread. There is no product of the farm so important to the human race as wheat.

They offer a premium of $25 11 for the best steam engine built in the State, but the society says it is fat more important that some fellow shall have a fast horse, and so offers him $150. In all the long list of articles pertaining to the farm, animals, implements, mechanics, etc, there are but two premiums offered that reach $50 each, and no others that go above $30; while there are several for fast horses that go up to $150, and quite a number that exceed $50. The Society attaches so much importance to fast stock, that it offered about one-fifth of all the premiums fund to encourage horse racing, or, as the Society calls it, "trials of speed." The most of this is, of course, "gobbled up" by horse jockeys. Even if the fast horses were all owned by farmers, and that it was necessary that there should be many fast horses in the State, then the proportion is favor of the horses would be enormous. Horse racing may be well enough in its place. It may be admissible at an Agricultural Fair—but it seems unwise to me to give it all the best prizes. If it pleases farmers and the people generally, to let their sons go to the Fair once a year to see scores of excited men betting their money on the races—why, I suppose I have no right to complain. It's a pretty good betting school.

The Fair is now closed, and taken all together, it is probably the best ever held in the State.

The total receipts from all sources amount to $6,950.

DR HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.—The preparation of this palatable remedy upon the stomach, liver and excretory organs is singularly soothing and conservative. It regulates, recruits and purifies them. Dyspepsia in all its forms yields to its control and invigorating properties, and it is recommended to mothers, enfeebled by the cares and duties of maternity, as the safest and best tonic that can probably be used. In all the crisis of cholera it will be found eminently useful, and elderly persons will derive much more benefit from it than from ordinary stimulants.—Sold by all Druggists and dealers everywhere.

☞ We have but little confidence in the trumpet tongued statements of the proprietors of advertised medicines generally, but we are forced to concur in the opinion, unanimously expressed by all who have used PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER, that it is a very valuable article; and one that it would be well for every household to have at hand, in case of bruises, scalds, burns, diarrhœa, dysentery, cholera, fever and ague, and the host of diseases, external and internal, which it is adapted to cure or alleviate. No article of medicine ever attained to such unbounded popularity and extensive diffusion. It has penetrated to every part, even the most remote, of the known world, bearing with it its healing influences more potent than those of the spices of "sunny climes." We are informed by our principal druggists, that they sell more of this article for exportation than any or all others, and that the demand is constantly increasing.—Salem Observer.

THIS INSTITUTE IS SITUATED IN A RETIRED and beautiful location, away from the business portion of the city, on Third, between B and C Sts., Portland, Oregon.

The Educational Department will be in charge of an efficient corps of Teachers. CAPT. J F C ALLSOPP, (formerly a Professor in the University of Louisiana, and for the last five years Principal of a Collegiate Institute in the Southern part of California,) Principal.

No effort will be spared to make this Institute equal to the best on the Pacific Coast. The Course of Studies will embrace all the branches usually taught in first-class Seminaries in the East, including the Classics, French, German, Spanish, Mathematics, &c., &c.

The Musical Department will be conducted by PROF. H GUIDO GROB, Graduate of Pionel's Conservatorio.

Parties from the country may rest assured that under the care of MRS GROB, (Matron of the Establishment), they will experience all the attention of a mother and

A Coming Humorist.

Although in all probability Charles Dickens will not be able to visit the Pacific Coast, there is some consolation in the reflection that Brick Pomeroy will. At least we have this cheering intelligence from a cotemporary, who had it from a gentleman who enjoys the epistolatory confidence of this rare wag. Mr Pomeroy is to start for California in January; his intentions and objects are, however, veiled in the usual mystery which attends the movements of genius. Whether he comes from purely sordid and pecuniary motives; whether a peculiar humor, which is sometimes amenable to common law; and not unfrequently results in libel suits, has made the atmosphere of La Crosse, Wisconsin, unhealthy to Mr. Pomeroy or whether the recent Democratic victories in this State have influenced his judgment, we are not informed. The latter, however, seems the most probable For it must be confessed that Mr Pomeroy's genius is of the rare exotic quality which in the North flowers only in those Democratic conservatories and hot beds which stimulate the rich feculence of its native Southern swamps, that his wit flourishes more favorably in a community where the civil magistrates are conservative, and a majority of the grand jurors and constables peace Democrats. A state of society which should punish the branding of freedmen, the whipping of negro girls, knifing, pistoling, and the minor eccentricities of gouging, maiming, cock-fighting, blasphemy and horse racing, would, we fear, be cruel to the sensitive talents of Mr. Pomeroy.

We presume that the conditions are favorable—or are expected to be so—or Mr. Pomeroy could not come. We shall be pleased to see him In fact the Democratic party of California have been notable for a singular lack of humor. Vigorous Democratic rhetoric, such as the shooting of Broderick, Pierce, and the negro barber Gordon, we have had—God knows!—enough But Democratic playfulness and badinage—as the gouging [illegible] after this pistoling and knifing [illegible] to call him a "cock eyed pilferer" is humorous To allude to our late President as a dissolutionist, is severe; but to call him a [illegible] nosed negro minstrel," has, to say the least, a certain cheerfulness of expression. And those who have perused the literary efforts of Pomeroy will see that fate and a consistent California democracy point to him as the man to initiate this reform. Some Democratic democrats will excuse this relaxing, remembering the hour of one of exultation The toils of the campaign are over, and playfulness succeeds mere business. Even visaged war hath smoothed his wrinkled front, and the Chivalry, relieved of the Conservative cuirass and the mediæval buckler, shall caper nimbly in a Pacific street dance cellar to the lascivious pleasing of a Pomeroy.

In the event of the election of a Democratic School Superintendent—perhaps not unlooked for by Mr Pomeroy—California school literature will assume a pleasing reform. Conservative parents will [illegible] may have too long been tyrannised over by the [illegible] Abolitionist Whittier, the fanatical Longfellow, the miscegenationist Holmes, the Abolitionist Lowell, and the libertine Saxe, will have an chance. Barbara Frietchee will be dis placed by My Maryland, any wretched Yankee [illegible] who alleges that "surges forth a shriek" is [illegible] by pronounced "matchless," will be [illegible] by H. A. Wise's oration over a Confederate cemetery, and the panegyric of Thomas Starr King on Baker, will stand side by side with the [illegible] beautiful and characteristic criticism of Mr Pomeroy on Grant:—

"But old dog of Galena! your teeth are gone and the age of miracles has passed away, you are not likely to grow a new set right away. What an aspiration for a man by whose orders the torch swept the fair and beautiful Shenandoah Valley!—Bulletin."

A Sorrow.—The following touching article appears in the New York Independent, from a member of the Beecher family, recently so sadly afflicted in the casualty which resulted in the death of three youths of that family:

The Angel of Sorrow waits just above us, ever ready to do the Master's will, among the children

When her wings are folded, as if in a long, long rest and our hearts are light with many blessings as the mandate a darkness fills all the air and we only know that sorrow hath been where we are

Our sorrow came, with a shrill, piercing cry, on a Summer's day, when the earth seemed alive with life and gladness.

Help! help! Lizzie is drowning!" was the cry that came up from the shore, where the children had gone down to bathe. It seemed a safe bathing place. They had been down and come back in safety so many times that at last we had forgotten to be anxious, forgotten to watch

There were many ears that heard the cry. There were many feet that made haste to reach the spot. Minutes from the time the cry rang out the strong men were in the sea, diving down where it [illegible] there in search of the lost girl. The sea had its secret well. Our hearts beat on the seconds until half an hour passed; and then we knew by the solemn sound of the voice from [illegible] saying: "Come this way! I have found something," that Lizzie was found. Gently they drew her in and brought her to land

Her mother stood on the shore. She lifted up her arms as if to receive the burden the men were bringing up the bank. Reader! you have half a Lizzie's mother had gone back to fifteen years of her child's life, good back her face and childhood, so that the form she held in her arms forth to [illegible] was that of the little child who first came into them.

With a wandering eye she threw them down, and dropped on her knees where Lizzie had been laid as if her work had ended there and then

Some one touched her, saying, "Come, we are going to try and bring her back"

Can Lizzie dead? Isn't my child gone where I can never see her again?"

There was something about the voice and the look with which that mother cast from the ground and uttered the words. Never there ventured an answer. Every eye turned away from the glance of the last hope looking out from that mother's eyes, afraid to meet it, lest it afterward drop down in despair

All the forms through which men seek to bring back the spirit to abide in human flesh were gone through with—and at them all the firm but fond and earnest heart of Lizzie's mother sustained and when for a moment any one ceased their work she looked up so pleadingly, saying "You are not going to give her up!" that again and again efforts were renewed driven on by the appeal, even when there was no hope except that which flashed up from the bitterness of the mother's heart, which could not, all at once, go down into the darkness of death. At last, after some hours had passed, there came one from old mainland, who looked upon the work, and said, "It is of no use. She has been dead a long time."

One by one the workers stood back, each rising up and looking down upon the dead girl, until there was no one left but the mother. She worked on, stroking the limp hands so fondly, so lovingly, that it seemed as if the dead muscles must convulse with one caress, in return for all the tenderness that so entreated. No one ventured to speak. At length consciousness came that her fellow workers had ceased from their labor. She looked from one to another, then put her throbbing fingers over dead Lizzie's heart, and her woe broke forth in sobs and cries, from whose sorrowful, pitiful power one after one withdrew, until she was left with God alone to breath comfort into her heart.

Could it be possible that this young girl, who at noonday moved before us full of youth and vigor was lying, at the sun's going down, never to rise again while earth follows her orbit? The night came on, and the stillness, the very hush of death, came over the place; while all about us, silent and polished as that "sea of glass mingled with fire" seen by vision of one on the Isle of Patmos, was the ocean.

It was thus that our sorrow came on a day in August. By the dark water-gate Lizzie entered into the life that lies before us. It was thus that the Angel of Sorrow hovered above our little Island; while the Angel of Death furled his wings for the first time at our doors.

Whose heart hath not been made to stand still while some dear one has passed, by the same dark way, to the city above? And while we sorrow, shall we not grow thankful that angels are ever watching at the water-gate for the souls that are called home through it?

The sea moans on, but there come never to our ears or moans or cries from out its deeps of those who have gone down. They pass silently through into the land where "there shall be no more sea"

C. C. Burr, the filthy Copperhead lecturer and editor of the Old Guard magazine, says in a recent number of that organ of Democratic literature that "whatever this present hour may say, Booth's name will sit by the side of that of Brutus in history."

Peanut Cities.

We have heard of peanut newspapers and peanut Senators but the St. Louis Democrat is entitled, so far as we know, to the credit of originating the phrase "peanut cities" In a late article discussing the transit through cities, and showing that Cincinnati is making tremendous efforts to secure the carrying trade of the West over routes converging there, and endeavoring to stimulate the St. Louisans to compete with their rival in that line, the Democrat says

Cincinnati does not want to be left out in the cold. If the main route of the Southern combination should pass via Columbus and Indianapolis, the result would be very unfavorable to Cincinnati interests. But, unfortunately for that city, its policy has thus far been calculated to drive all travel and business away from it No man can get through Cincinnati without changing cars. No freight can pass through that city without transhipment. The waste and delay of transfer, and the discomfort, inconvenience, and frequent detention caused to travel, really force business to seek a more easy route through cities less anxious to profit by the public inconvenience. There are two kinds of cities Some are in the hack, dray and peanut-stand stage of development, and sacrifice all other interests to keep their peanut venders and hack drivers in prosperity. Erie was a city of that sort, when it tore up the tracks of railroads to prevent people passing through its limits without paying tribute. Cincinnati and St. Louis are both cities of that species New York breaks all routes simply because of her position. Philadelphia used to do the same, but has more recently caught the spirit of a later civilization, and now affords ready transit to every direction. The same is true of Baltimore. Now, on the Northern route, a man can ride from Boston or New York to Julesburg without leaving his seat in the cars On the Southern routes, if one undertakes to go through Cincinnati he must be bumped over pavements for a mile or two in a noisy omnibus. Consequently business will inevitably seek some other line, either the Northern routes, or the Indianapolis, Crestline or Columbus, and Pittsburg route.

Beginning to discover this fact, Cincinnati is becoming very much disposed to adopt a new policy, and to grant to railroad companies the privilege of laying connection tracks through the city. We fancy, however, that it is too late already Had Cincinnati been sensible earlier, she would have secured connection for the Ohio and Mississippi with eastern routes, thus enabling that road to compete advantageously with other lines. As it is, she has fairly forced the building and development of roads which now furnish more speedy, direct and easy communication between East and West than can be had through Cincinnati and her chance is lost forever. The great routes of travel will pass north of the dray and omnibus protecting city, and Cincinnati will be left out in the cold.

For St. Louis it is not too late A good bridge and a union depot will render this place no longer an obstacle to travel or business, and thus permit the development of the great Southern routes without going around us. Otherwise St. Louis will be left out as Cincinnati has been. If we continue much longer to force travel and freight to change cars at St. Louis, we shall see routes completed either via Naples, Hannibal or Louisiana, and Moberly to Kansas City, which will effectually cut off St. Louis and drive the business of the continent away from us.

A Love Affair Described in the Language of the Ring.—"Jean Paul" contributes the following in his New York letter to the Springfield (Mass.) Republican:

"Optics," "peepers," "spectacular organ," "smelling boxes," "bugles," "claret jars," "proboscises," "horns," "snifters," "potato traps," "kissers," "nhouse boxes"—are these phrases to become incorporated into our literature in the dailies? Fancy a love scene written up as follows:

"Twas night, and the aromatic Arabella and the fatiginous Fitzfoodle, in accordance with previous arrangement—play or pay being the word—were seated in the garden. Both were in excellent condition, and showed the benefit of good training.

Arabella was a little too much in flesh perhaps, but Fitzfoodle dont carry an ounce of spare weight, and stepped smilingly into the ring, looking confident of winning.

The moon in the far heavens lay smiling and serene like a bottle-holder, while the stars looked down with their mild spectacular organs, seemingly ready to act as referees.

An old clock in a neighboring kitchen called time.

Little was lost in preliminary sparring; side by side sat the amative amateurs, grasping each others' mawleys. Indeed, it was a beautiful scene, calling back memories of the halcyon days when the Cohoes Chicken had a mill with the Skeneateles sockdolager.

A counter or two, and Fitzfoodle nearly got his left fin around Arabella's ribs, his right still grasping her small and delicate bunch of fives.

"Is your money mine?" asked Fitzfoodle in tender accents.

No reply was heard; it was evident that this side-winder had about knocked the breath out of Arabella.

But the demoralization was but momentary. "I don't see it," she said, getting her left fin out of chancery.

This was one on Fitzfoodle's nob. He went down on his knees to avoid further punishment. At this there were cries of "foul," "foul," in a restaurant near by, and the victory was claimed for Arabella.

But Fitzfoodle refused to give it up, and both retired to their corners.

Arabella came up, looking game to the backbone; Fitzfoodle, notwithstanding his late punishment, still smiling and confident.

"My parents are wealthy," he murmured, and again got his left duke in on Arabella's ribs, and fibbing away until there was danger of a row outside the ropes.

"The figure?" she gasped.

"A peach orchard in New Jersey," he returned, and with that put in one on her potato-trap, which she returned with interest on his kisser. There was a lively round of sounding exchanges, and it was plain that from that forth Fitzfoodle had the fight his own way.

Finding it useless to longer hold out, Arabella now threw up the sponge, closed her lovely peepers, and reposed her curly knowledge box peacefully upon Fitzfoodle's manly breadbasket, utterly regardless of the fact that a huge mosquito had tapped her bugle and was drawing the claret at a fearful rate.

I object to having love scenes done up like that, but such will be the result if prize-fighting be permitted to engross columns that claim to be respectable, forcing its technicalities and sickening details upon the notice of a susceptible generation.

"The Peace of Europe."—The London Times of a late date says:

"All the national and right-thinking portion of the French people desire peace for its own sake, for the sake of civilization, and for the sake of liberty. No nation has had a larger share of the glories of war; no nation knows better the cost and the value of crowns of laurel. But our neighbors are not the masters of their own destinies; nor is the Emperor Napoleon as much the mover as the instrument of the forces that sustain his throne. An unemployed and discontented army of twelve hundred thousand men will burst like a shell in the hands of its makers, and must be hurled across the frontiers to burn itself out. The Second Empire has to make its choice between war, with all its hazards, of glory or defeat, and, the final certainty of sinking under the weight of its conquests or its reverses, or the crowning of the edifice with liberty. Until France disarms or recovers her freedom, the peace of Europe will not be worth six months' purchase."

PORTLAND, August 10, 1867

I was at Mr Wegner's store on Saturday, August 10th, and seeing the magic effect of J G RENNICK'S SITKA LINIMENT, in his case, concluded to try it on my wrist which has been sprained for some time I found relief inside of FIVE MINUTES from its application, and it is now perfectly well My wrist was so swelled I could not shut my fingers I believe it will cure any pain in a short time I will give any further particulars to whoever calls on
